The Ten Most Important Things to Talk About With Your Mother

“Thousands of questions and 400 personal interviews later, it is clear that health is the number one topic most women need to talk about with their mothers -- and most often avoid or overlook -- followed by money, aging and death and dying. My Mother, My Friend gives women the skills, confidence, and language to talk about these important issues positively and gracefully.” Mary Marcdante, Author & Speaker

A perfect keynote program for Women's Health and Leadership Conferences, Appreciation Luncheons, Holiday Brunches, Mother's Day, and Valentine's Day. Or create a special Mother-Daughter event for your organization!

Program Objectives and Benefits

- ~ Celebrates the powerful and complex bond between an adult daughter and her mother. Mary highlights interviews, stories, and research from her book, while actively involving the audience. Motivating, entertaining, and life-changing.
- ~ Offers explicit communication techniques and candid questions a woman can ask her mother on a variety of topics that may have been overlooked or avoided through the years including health, money, aging, and family secrets.
- ~ Inspires women to make healthier choices. Mary shares the healing journey she has been on since her mother was diagnosed with ovarian cancer and her own hysterectomy at age 43 as a result of cervical cancer.
- ~ Encourages a woman's personal and spiritual growth, available through journaling, dreams, and intuition, as evidenced in the remarkable and miraculous story of how My Mother, My Friend came to be written and published.
